Visible Light contains several different wave lengths that can be detected by the human eye

The Berry beam consist of only one wave length. For this reason it remains concentrated and very powerful

20 million watts per cubic center meter

A Negatively charged electrode positioned in the cavity's center and creates an intensely hot spark fueled by Sodium

Pressurized gas like oxygen is forced through a narrow cavity

Plasma is gas superheated to the fourth state of matter. It's found burning on the sun or like flashing in lightening

The Berry Resonator creates it's unique capabilities by converting gases into surgery like energy. A resonator within a housing channels. A direct current into a tube containing a gas like Carbon Dioxide .The current excites the gas which in turn emits photons of light
